Race in Tennessee Organizes For Victory

The Lincoln Republican League Nominees Receive Double the Vote Polled by Lily Whites.

Special to The Monitor Shows Advantage of Systematic, Well-Directed Organization.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 10, 1916.

The one great victory won by the American Negro in Tuesday's election came in Memphis and West Tennessee.

The Lincoln Republican League, R. R. Church, Jr., founder and president, annihilated the Lily-white Republicans in an open contest at the ballot-box.

And more, the Lincoln League shattered the Local Option combination composed of white Republicans, Democrats and Know Nothings.

But most important, Lincoln League now 5,000 strong and still growing, has gathered Colored men into the most unique and largest political organization among Colored people in the country. As leader, Mr. Church can boast a following larger, more devoted and more determined that ever lined up behind a Colored leader.

Friday night the League met to consider the situation. More men were present—maybe 3,000 of them—than got together the Friday night before election. Beginning here, the capital of the Negro race, the battle is on to break the political shackles of the Southern Negro.

Candidates Win Down the Line.

From Wayman Wilkerson, candidate for Congress straight down the line, the Lincoln League ticket polled a vote larger than the so-called Republican organization. With no protection at the polls, and local combinations against them, together with the natural bent of Democrats to brow-beat Colored men, the candidates came through with an approximate vote of 2,700 as counted by election judges.

Thomas H. Hayes, popular business man, on a fair count, would be Floater Senator from Shelby and Tipton counties. He ran his democratic adversary smack up to the State House steps.

The campaign launched by Mr. Church and his supporters, grew in interest. From the middle of August until election eve, when Roscoe Simmons arose to close the campaign before 7,000 people, interest in the contest was without parallel in the South. And the women were more set and determined than the men.

Work Just Begun.

The Lincoln League is organizing for local contests next year, and for the Congressional race in 1918. Candidates will be put up for every office, county and congressional and since the great vote piled up by the organization establishes it as the Regular Republican party organization in this section of the state, the party will always be represented on the official ballot.

THE AFTERMATH

Some Reflections Upon the Re-Election of President Wilson.

George Wells Parker, Contributing Editor.

He calleth to me out of Seir, Watchman, what of the night? Watchman, what of the night?

The watchman said, The morning cometh."

When the wires flashed the news across the mountains that California had gone for Wilson, the Colored American felt a twang of despair clutch at his heart. To him the news was bitter, bitter as gall. Four years of Democratic rule had convinced him that there is no hope at court, and his prayer at morning, noontide and evening was, that Hughes might carry the day. But fate ruled otherwise and for four more years Wilson, the incarnation of Southernism, will steer the ship of state. And what is the Colored race to expect?

"How," you may ask, "can we quote the answer of the watchman of Seir: 'The morning cometh?' Surely such optimism is foolish."

In the face of the record of the past four years this optimism may seem foolish, but the future four years are years of new conditions of which those past four years knew nothing. Times change and blessings may lurk in the days to come. The lesson of history is that things happen for the best and in this truism we may find comfort. Four years ago we expected national disfranchisement, yet a Democratic Supreme Court declared Southern disfranchisement unconstitutional. Somehow the Negro haters of the south were lulled to quiet, and the segregation and political elimination of the Negro was thoroly effected at the national capital, all attempts at national effacement died still born. Tillman, Vardaman, Heflin, and their ilk, pigeonholed their cursed speeches and their bills went into Democratic committees never to see light. What did it mean?

Now that the south has won again, will they dare to do that which has always been nearest their hearts, nationally disfranchise the Negro? No, the chance is more remote than it has been since the days of the reconstruction. Something more potent than human hate has struck at the vitals of the south, the problem of human existence. The poor Negro, robbed of all human rights, has turned from the southland and is looking towards a home in the north. To lose the Negro means the ruin of the south. That is the answer in a nutshell.

Listen to this from the Macon Telegraph: "We must have the Negro in the south. He has been with us so long that our whole industrial, commercial and agricultural structure has been built on a black foundation. It is

Roosevelt Praises Anderson Publicly

Before Large Audience of New York's Elite Ex-President Roosevelt Pays Tribute to Distinguished Services of Negro and Jew.

WORTH NOT BIRTH COUNTS

First Colored Man Appointed to Office of High Honor in the North Makes Admirable Record.

New York, Nov. 16.—Before a mammoth crowd at the National Theatre in this city, Nov. 3rd, which had gathered to welcome home the Hughes Women's train, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt paid a glowing compliment to Hon. Charles W. Anderson. The theatre was packed with one of the most brilliant audiences of the campaign. Among the leaders of society and business present were Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Miss Frances Kellor, Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, Dr. Catherine Davis, Mrs. O. P. H. Belmont, Hon. Herbert Parsons, Samuel S. Koenig, Commissioner and Mrs. Cabot Ward and many others prominent in business, financial and social circles in this city. Hon. Oscar S. Straus presided. Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, the wife of the republican candidate, occupied one of the boxes.

Colonel Summons Anderson

At the conclusion of the wonderful demonstration which attended Colonel Roosevelt's appearance, he shook hands with several persons sitting near him and on catching sight of Mr. Anderson in the rear of the stage, beckoned him to come forward, shook his hand most cordially and stood for a moment with his left hand on the Collector's shoulder, which brought a round of applause from the house.

Praises Distinguished Hebrew.

During his speech the Colonel referred to the men who had rendered distinguished service in high governmental places while he was president, and said Hon. Oscar S. Straus, who was a member of his cabinet, and who was a distinguished Hebrew, was one of the men of whom he had formed the highest esteem. He referred to Mr. Straus' service while Ambassador to Turkey in demanding protection for the Armenians against the oppression of the Moslems, and added "we were all glad to stand by Mr. Straus later on when he demanded protection for the Jews."

Distinguished Member of Another Race.

Continuing he said, "There is on this platform a very distinguished member of another race whom I am proud to have appointed to office. Mr. Charles W. Anderson was the first Colored man to be appointed to an office of high honor and responsibility in the north. His record was admirable. He made good. If he had not, I would not have continued him in the office even if every Colored man in the United States had requested me to do so. But he not only made

CLEVELAND WANTS NEGRO LABORERS ORGANIZED

Cleveland, O., Nov. 16.—The executive committee of the Cleveland Federation of Labor voted here recently to urge organization of southern Negroes as a solution of the labor problems that have arisen from their importation in large numbers to Cleveland and other northern cities.

They will urge organization to President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, through Secretary J. G. Owens and Representative George Hahn. In only one case, the committee reported, have Negroes been brought to Cleveland as strike breakers. Railroads have been the largest importers.

SAVED WENDELL PHILLIPS.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 16.—Thomas P. Taylor, who died in a local hospital, has just been buried after funeral services in the Charles Street A. M. E. church. For some years he and Frank B. Sanborn had been the only survivors, it is said, of the rescuers of Wendell Phillips when the latter was mobbed as an Abolitionist at the Jey Street Colored church, before the Civil war. Taylor was on board the U. S. S. Vandalia, when it was wrecked in a hurricane in 1889, at Samoa.

PITTSBURG RAISES $15,000.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 16.—The campaign to raise $10,000 among the colored people toward a new Young Men's Christian Association, came to a close Monday night, when a total of $15,317.70 was reported. Congratulatory addresses were delivered by International Secretary J. E. Moorland, who directed the campaign; Ralph W. Harbison, F. B. Shipp and Hezekiah Anderson.

NEGRO FARMER GETS HIGH PRICE FOR COTTON

Eufala, Ala.—A Negro farmer got Eufala's record-breaking price for a bale of cotton and the seed. Both brought $166.32. The bale weighed 770 pounds and was the largest brought to the city this year. The lint, at 16½ cents per pound, brought $127.05, while the seed, at the market price of $51 per ton, brought in $39.27.

BRAITHWAITE'S ANTHOLOGY.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 16.—Wm. Stanley Braithwaite, the literary critic, has about completed his "Anthology of Poetry for 1916." This work is regarded as an authority by lovers and critics of poetry. Mr. Braithwaite published in the Transcript two weeks ago a review of poetry during the year.

FOR COLORED CONSUMPTIVES.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 16.—The state of Virginia has practically closed a deal for a tract of 350 acres of land in Nottaway county, which will be used as a sanatorium for colored consumptives.

SEGREGATION IN COURT HOUSE.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 16.—"Jim Crow" seats now obtain in the city court room, according to signs placed there a few days ago.

BROWN BEATS YALE.

It was a sad blow to Tad Jones and other Yale coaches who had visions of a victorious year for Yale, something missing from the New Haven institution for a long time. The Jones smile was in evidence, but that was before Pollard, the colored halfback of Brown began to run rampant over the Eli cacklers. The persistent Pollard was the big thorn in the Yale side. As he dived into and through so many men on his dashes toward victory he left Yale warriors strewn all over the field.—New York Sun.

For the first time in twenty years a colored girl has succeeded in becoming a member of the High School orchestra of Washington, Pa. She is Miss Monzella Walters, age 15, and a violinist of ability.

Fred Pollard, half-back on the Brown University Football Team, scored two touchdowns after sensational runs through broken fields, in the Brown-Vermont game recently, and was widely mentioned throughout the press. It was because of Pollard that Princeton refused to play Brown, and Brown quickly scratched them off the visiting list.

ON UGLINESS.

"Extreme admiration put out the critics eye" is an adage old and true. The homeliest persons are attractive to those who love them. Physically speaking, there is no one ugly in this whole world. The ugliest woman, so-called, has some man who is just "crazy" about her. Even so we find beautiful women attracted to so-called ugly men. Ugliness then is not physical but psychical and is not applicable to individuals or races. It is more mental. It is more moral.

The descriptive use of ugliness can be applied only to character. Purity of life contributes more to our charm than all the adornment and finery that money can buy. The cultured mind, the clean life, the pure heart, entrances and charms when the face and form have lost beauty and youthfulness—"handsome is as handsome does."

Mother's Hands.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands,
They're neither white nor small,
And you, I know, would scarcely think
That they were fair at all.
I've looked on hands whose form and hue

A sculptor's dream might be,
Yet are these aged wrinkled hands
Most beautiful to me.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands!
Though heart were weary and sad
These patient hands kept toiling on
That the children might be glad.
I almost weep when looking back
To childhood's distant day!
I think how these hands rested not
When mine were at their play.

But, oh! beyond this shadow land,
Where all is bright and fair;
I know full well those dear old hands
Will palms of victory bear;
Where crystal streams, through endless years,
Flow over golden sands,
And where the old are young again,
I'll clasp my mother's hands.
—Selected.

The Prudish Attitude of Parents.

There are certain stages in the life of every boy and girl when the confidence and advice of the father and mother may prove of inestimable value. If parents have not cultivated a relationship with their children which will enable them to discuss the problems which budding manhood and womanhood bring, they have fallen far short of doing their duty.

The evasions, lies and prudish attitude of parents have been responsible for mistakes which have resulted in agony of soul and body for innumerable growing boys and girls.

There is no period in life when children are more sensitive to influences for good and evil than in this formative stage. They will accept and seek information from other sources if they cannot get it from their parents; the chances are a hundred to one that what they get will be misinformation and the injurious lies of companions with a distorted moral code.

AUTUMN SALADS.

FRUIT salads form an admirable dish at any season. But the fruit called for in the following recipes are all seasonable to autumn and so may be used to add zest to the menus of the first frosty days:

Sweet Fruit Salad.—Three ripe yellow pears, a bunch of white grapes, a blood orange, two red bananas, a glass of maraschino cordial or the same quantity of rum and sugar to taste. Peel the pears and quarter them, taking out seeds; seed the grapes, peel and slice the bananas and cut the orange in slices through the skin, dividing the slices then or leaving them whole. Put all the fruit together and sugar it liberally, then put it away on the ice. When ready to serve put on the liquor used. If this salad is served in a glass bowl and the red orange slices are left whole the effect will be very ornamental.

Endive and Grapefruit Salad.—Several crisp endive heads, a ripe grapefruit, French dressing with paprika instead of the usual pepper. Wash and dry the endive, breaking the leaves apart first, then cut them down in thin strips. Peel the grapefruit and take out the meat in plugs, denuding it of pith and the skin about the core. Put the fruit and endive together, tossing the salad in the dressing and putting on as much paprika as is agreeable to taste. After it is well mixed, pile it on a mound of romaine or plain lettuce leaves, also tossed in a French dressing.

Mixed Vegetable Salad.—This may be made of any green vegetables, but in the smart restaurants the chefs put the following things together: French lettuce, endive, cucumbers, celery hearts, green pepper, asparagus tips, pimentos and sometimes string beans. A nest is made of the plain lettuce, the endive is cut in fine strips, and if the asparagus or string beans are of the canned sort they are first washed off with fresh water and then thoroughly drained. The cucumber is cut in paper fine slices. All of the ingredients are put together in a mixing bowl and tossed lightly in a French dressing—olive oil, vinegar or lemon, salt and cayenne. Unless requested not to do so, the French chef also adds a taste of garlic or onion. When served this salad lies in the nest of lettuce leaves with a border of sliced cucumber or radishes cut to look like fuchias.

The Value of Colored Advertising

Have you ever thought before of the monetary value of advertising among Colored people as a class? If not, permit us to open your eyes to a fertile field of advertising that you have too long neglected.

Thousands of Colored men in this city and country are waiters and every waiter is a salesman. In hotels and on dining cars 99 per cent of guests are open to suggestions as to what they shall eat and drink. Some of us have been waiters and we know. Whenever the Domino Sugar man gets on a dining car he slips each waiter a dollar and whispers, "Heavy on the sugar, boy; heavy on the sugar." Why? Because he knows that the waiter is a business maker. We can say it without one word of exaggeration that the Colored waiters of the United States sell more of certain lines of foodstuffs than any single method of advertising extant.

The Colored caterer is also a most important factor. His trade is followed among the wealthy and he has all to say as to what his guests shall eat. The Colored paper means more to him than any other publication outside of his cook books and trade periodicals. Isn't he a very important man to reach?

The Colored club steward is another man to consider. In nearly every city of size the Colored steward is a fixture. The stewards of commercial and social clubs with their thousands of members are of value to the merchant. A steward would sooner patronize a firm who is willing to advertise with his people than go elsewhere when prices are the same. Isn't it logical?

Then there is the Colored cook who does practically all the choosing for the family table. The mistress may not care whether Bing's Beans or Page's Pickles are bought, but the Colored cook is going to ask for the brand advertised in the race paper which he or she reads.

Another class to be reckoned with is the servant class. In the matter of buying and favoring one brand of goods to another, or one dealer to another, their power of suggestion is a value to be reckoned with. They, too, are reached by the Colored weekly.

And lastly, but not least, come the Colored people themselves. Whatever may be their faults and their virtues, three things are certain: Colored people will eat, dress and furnish their homes. The ten thousand readers of The Monitor spend millions of dollars annually for merchandise of all kinds and they are fast realizing that the firm that advertises in their race paper is more courteous, more obliging and more anxious for their business than the firm that doesn't.

THAT IS WHY WE SAY THAT COLORED ADVERTISING PAYS—

Think it over.

Colored advertising pays better than any kind of class advertising on earth because there are more of that class and because they are placed in a position to be of value to the advertiser.

FLORIST AND UNDERTAKER.

The properly putting away the dead with flowers is a big business because "man is born to die." There are two undertakers of our people in the city doing good business, but without an apartment of flowers to make up the floral designs.

Such an annex is a profitable paying business in itself and would give employment to several of our women who are the most artistic designers in the world. Why the men engaged in the business of emblaming the dead have not added this most beautiful essential feature we do not understand.

A former citizen of Omaha, Mr. G. Wade Obee, who for years was the best and leading undertaker and embalmer of our people there, is in our city with the intention of locating permanently in the same work, and the Los Angeles Post hopes that he will add or rather start out with an apartment to make all of the floral wreaths and beautiful designs thus giving employment to many of the citizens who raise flowers in their yards. This act will be the incentive to creating a big industry, and many girls and boys who are now idle will find work of a pleasant nature.

The churches, private parties and all public affairs would have a certain place of our own for supplies at all times. This business would thrive with less effort than any other and should be pushed to the front at once.—Los Angeles Post.

KILLDEER

(Oxyechus vociferus)

Length, ten inches. Distinguished by its piercing and oft-repeated cry—kildee.

Range: Breeds throughout the United States and most of Canada; winters from central United States to South America.

Habits and economic status: The killdeer is one of the best known of the shorebird family. It often visits the farmyard and commonly nests in pastures or cornfields. It is rather suspicious, however, and on being approached takes flight with loud cries. It is noisy and restless, but fortunately most of its activities result in benefit to man. The food is of the same general nature as that of the upland plover, but is more varied. The killdeer feeds upon beetles, grasshoppers, caterpillars, ants, bugs, caddis flies, dragonflies, centipedes, spiders, ticks, oyster worms, earthworms, snails, crabs and other crustacea. Among the beetles consumed are such pests as the alfalfa weevil, cotton-boll weevil, clover-root weevil, clover-leaf weevil, pine weevil, billbugs, white grubs, wireworms, and leaf beetles. The bird also devours cotton worms, cotton cutworms, horseflies, mosquitoes, cattle ticks, and crawfish. One stomach contained hundreds of larvae of the saltmarsh mosquito, one of the most troublesome species. The killdeer preys extensively upon insects that are annoying to man and injurious to his stock and crops, and this should be enough to remove it from the list of game birds and insure its protection.

OPEN CONFESSION OF MACON TELEGRAPH

We must leave the Negro in the South. The black man is fitted by nature, by centuries of living in it, to work contentedly, effectively and healthily during the long summers of semi-tropical and tropical countries. He has been with us so long that our whole industrial, commercial and agricultural structure has been built on a black foundation. It is the only labor we have, it is the best we possibly could have—if we lose it, we go bankrupt! Everybody seems to be asleep about what is going on right under our noses. That is, everybody but those farmers who have wakened up of mornings recently to find every male Negro over 21 on his place gone—to Cleveland, to Pittsburg, to Chicago, to Indianapolis. Better jobs, better treatment, higher pay—the bait held out is being swallowed by thousands of them all about us. And while our very solvency is being sucked out from underneath we go about our affairs as usual: Our police officers raid poolrooms for "loafing Negroes," bring in twelve, keep them in the barracks all night and next morning find that ten of them have steady, regular jobs, were there merely to spend an hour in the only indoor recreation they have; our county officers hear of a disturbance at a Negro resort and bring in fifty-odd men, women and boys and girls to spend the night in the jail, to make bond at ten per cent, to hire lawyers, to mortgage half of two months' wages to get back on their jobs Monday morning—although but a bare half dozen could have been guilty of the disorderly conduct. It was the week following that several Macon employers found good Negroes, men trained to their work, secure and respected in their jobs, valuable assets to their white employers, suddenly left and gone to Cleveland, "where they don't arrest fifty for what three of 'em done."

THE HALF-CENTURY MAGAZINE

Among our exchanges this week we have received a copy of the November Half-Century Magazine, a new publication, published in Chicago, of which a race woman is editor. It is a most interesting journal and will find a warm welcome in the homes of thousands of our people. The frontispiece of this issue is great. It represents a proud young football hero, plastered and bandaged after the gridiron battle, holding hands with a pretty little brown-skin doll who is no less proud than the pigskin warrior. The look which she bends upon him is apparently worth all the court plaster and antiseptic gauze which decorate his head.

There are two strong stories, and an illustrated article upon the return of the Eighth Illinois to Chicago. Nine other special departments go to make the magazine a most valuable periodical. Under "What They Are Wearing," are several illustrated fashions, the models serving being types of our own people. Race news, drama, music, etiquette, beauty hints, humor, and domestic science, are the fields covered and that exceedingly well. We would suggest that Monitor readers write for a sample copy and see what fine work our race is beginning to do in the fields of journalism. The address is The Half-Century Magazine Publishing Co., 3708 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Another Election For Next Month

As You Are to Have a Chance to Vote Again in December You Want to Know How to Mark Your Ballot Intelligently.

The presidential election was close. As a matter of fact in several states the official count may yet be necessary to determine whether Woodrow Wilson or Charles E. Hughes is elected.

The national election, if it has determined anything, it is the value of every man's vote. It shows the importance of every man voting and voting intelligently.

Perhaps you have overlooked the fact that there is to be another election held December 5. You are going to have a chance to vote again. And as a citizen of Omaha you owe it to yourself to vote and vote intelligently. The election, December 5, is to decide a matter which vitally affects you as a citizen and taxpayer. Whether you do or do not own real estate, you are affected by higher or lower taxes. You are a taxpayer directly or indirectly, and therefore it is very important that you vote December 5.

The issue to be decided at that election is this:

Will the citizens of Omaha accept and ratify the definite clear-cut street lighting contract proposed by the Omaha Electric Light and Power Company? Or will they reject this for the promise of a vague, indefinite municipal owned plan and system to be inaugurated in the remote future?

When reduced to sober facts these are the two propositions.

It ought not be difficult for the hundreds of intelligent readers of The Monitor to decide as to how they ought to vote.

Here are some of the many advantages to be obtained under the proposed contract of the Electric Light and Power Company:

First—A total number of 2,488 lamps as against 1,417 now in use, without an increase in cost to the city. The increase in number of lamps provided is 1,071.

Second—A complete, efficient and decorative ornamental street lighting system for the business section of our city without any investment on the part of the city or merchants. The whole cost of additional installation of lamps is borne by the company.

Third—Reduces the cost of lighting a street intersection about $24.00, which means that almost two intersections can be lighted for the present cost of one intersection.

Fourth—About 75 per cent of dark street intersections can be lighted without additional cost to city, thereby, giving better police protection throughout the entire city.

Fifth—The lamps proposed in the contract are claimed to be most satisfactory, giving more light without flicker, glare or shadows.

Sixth—The demands for more light constantly made by the people can be met without immediate increase in our lighting fund.

Seventh—The proposed contract does away with the present old-style arc lamps which are obsolete, and secures for the city the most improved lamp known to the electrical industry for street lighting purposes.

Eighth—The proposed cost, as indicated by, the data on hand covering thirty-five cities of over 100,000 population, is lower than any other city in the United States using incandescent lamps.

These, it would seem are advantages worth considering. Don't you think so, too?

Our city is at present very poorly lighted. All must admit that. Now the proposed installment of Type "C" Mazda lamps for street lighting, which is designed to supersede the present obsolete and common arc and flame arc lamps, with the end in view of providing for Omaha, without additional expense, a complete and modern ornamental system of lighting for the business section of the city together with a greater number of more desirable lighting units for the outlying districts should meet the approval of all who want a better lighted city.

The important question is: Do you want a better lighted city than we now have at less expense?

Of course you do. This is what the proposed lighting contract upon which you are to vote December 5 offers. Don't you think you ought to vote for it and get your neighbor to do the same?

OBJECTED TO NEGRO DIALECT

The Literary Digest for November 11, gave a rather lengthy review of opinion expressed by the High School Music Teachers of New York, disapproving of the "Negro dialect in songs published in public-school text-books. The South was especially aroused over the teachers' objections, and came back with strong words of criticism and opposition.

The conclusion of the article contains quotations from an article written by Mr. David Mannes in the New York Evening Post. Mr. Mannes among other activities, teaches in the Music School Settlement for Colored People in Harlem. A most interesting part of his conclusions is quoted as follows:

"As the Negro learns his own inflection to any tongue he learns, so his touch on the piano differs from the white man's. Here, too, his natural potentialities must expand. Negroes either pick on instruments or play on instruments of percussion; to my knowledge they have never turned to bowed instruments. So it is that the difficulty for the Negro in playing on the violin lies in the bow. In their management of it they may approach the fine and natural legato of their own voices.

"Their musical inspiration as a rule has as its initial force an intense spiritual feeling so common in the black race, literate and illiterate. True preparedness means the stimulating of the poetical, musical, and dramatic qualities of the child of today so that the man and the woman of tomorrow shall resist the onslaughts of material aggression.

"As Theodore Thomas once said, familiar music is popular music. My whole idea, therefore, is to make Beethoven, Bach, Brahms, and Cesar Franck familiar and popular with the Colored people and raise them, through these masters, to the plane of intelligent appreciation of, and participation in, the best traditions which we have."

The Don't Worry Girls' Club met at the home of Estelle Jefferson, 512 No. 25th St., Nov. 9th. There was a good attendance and all were more than delighted to welcome a new member, Miss Brown. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Hazel Jordan, 2411 No. 29th St.

CLIMBING A MOUNTAIN

Did you ever climb one of the big high mountains of our wonderful West? Gee, but wasn't it great sport? You started up the slope with a cheer upon your lips and an exhilaration in your limbs. It seemed as though you could climb it in a few minutes, but as you ascended the trail grew difficult and your breath grew short. You slipped in the gravel, stumbled over the rocks and struggled over the boulders. You reached the half way place and then—you sat down. The summit of that mountain never looked so high before. You waited until your heart stopped throbbing and then you started up again. At last you reached the top and you remember the joy of it yet. You gazed over the marvelous scene and counted the hills that crouched like sleeping giants across the bending skies. You looked down to the starting place and glimpsed the villages scattered like children's toys upon the earth. Virgin winds fanned your cheeks and you filled up your lungs almost to bursting with the sweetest, coolest, purest air they ever knew. A strange feeling welled up within you and you felt as some conqueror may have felt when he stood at the zenith of his power and dreamed that the world was his.

So life is a mountain to be climbed by you and me and all the human race. We grow tired sometimes, perhaps a little discouraged, but the cloud-kissed summit calls to us and we climb and climb. Some day mankind will reach the top, black and white together. All are striving and hoping for the same end, and although sometime the one seemingly tries to hold the other back, it is only a seeming. At the base of human thought and human passion, the same heart throbs, the same hopes are born, the same loves are breathing. When we reach the top we all will understand. Hand in hand we will look down the trail of years and find that our troubles were only gentle goads that helped us reach the top.

THE CENTIMETER.

We regret to learn that The Centimeter has been forced to suspend publication, because of many causes which render its continuance almost impossible. We trust that its suspension may not be permanent, but whether permanent or not, its editor has deserved much credit. Any man who attempts journalism deserves credit, but when one takes into consideration that Mr. Fred Williams does not possess his sight, his attempt proves his nerve, ability and desire to be of real service to his race. His effort was a grand one and should stand as a shining example to men who are better able physically to attempt praiseworthy things. The Monitor only hopes that in the near future it may be fortunate enough to engage the services of Mr. Williams in its own field, because he has proven himself eminently fit.

THE NOVEMBER RIDDLE.

The national campaign is over and everybody is trying to figure out how the whole thing happened. Power switched from east to west, democratic states fell head over heels into republican columns and republican states hurdled into democracy. Governors were elected and displaced irrespective of the national vote and congressmen skipped around like bullets in a wild west story. State tickets came out in patterns that resemble Scotch plaid. Political forecasters and reviewers are buying headache powders to relieve their aching brains. It is all a mystery and we are not going to put across any Sherlock Holmes stunt. All we can say is that the public must know what it wants and that it has thoroughly learned how to mussy up slates in order to get it.

THE MATTER OF DISCRIMINATION

Several weeks ago several readers of The Monitor notified us that discrimination was practiced at the Food Show. The matter has been thoroughly investigated and it appears that the firms concerned were in no wise responsible for the unfortunate occurrences. The temporary help employed were the offending parties and we are assured that nothing of the kind will happen again.

The two letters from the firms concerned are as follows:

Olympia, Wn., Oct. 21, 1916.
The Monitor,
1119 No. 21st St.,
Omaha, Neb.
Gentlemen:

Your kind letter of the 14th addressed to our Salem office, duly at hand, and in response would state that we know nothing of the proposition which you mention in your letter, and are surprised to note that there has been any discrimination shown as under no circumstances do we make any. As a matter of fact, here at our plant in Olympia, we have in our employ a colored man and his wife conducting our employe's restaurant.

We assure you that this must have been due to the help that was employed and no doubt you realize some people are very narrow-minded on this subject.

We appreciate your addressing us and assure you that no such occurrence will come about again.

Thanking you, we are,
Yours very truly,
Northwest Fruit Products Co.
By Frederick W. Schmidt,
Sales Manager.

Schuyler, Neb., Nov. 10, 1916.
The Monitor,
Omaha, Nebraska.

Dear Sirs:
Your letter of the 8th, with enclosure, is received, and we note that our former letter was not satisfactory. Regardless of what either side may have said in the case, we will say to you that any discourtesy or discrimination which our employes may have shown is a matter of regret to us and contrary to our wishes and expectations, and that we shall impress still further upon all employes that courtesy must be shown toward all.

Sincerely,
Wells-Abbott-Nieman Co.,
C. Abbott, President.

LYNCHING A RICH NEGRO.

South Carolina may not have as many lynchings as Georgia, but occasionally she puts on a variety of trimmings when her mob spirit is at work. One thing of interest in the details of the Abbeville affair is that the Negro victim was said to be owner of farm lands worth $20,000. This is important only because it serves to emphasize the need of eradicating race antipathy. This was perhaps a representative Negro of the better class, else he would not have acquired so much property. He was not a poor, criminal, shiftless no-account, but a man of means. It is not likely that he had any sort of criminal record. The lynching, then, was not the removal of a worthless vagabond whose crimes had been many and great, and because this is true the tragedy reflects very plainly race feeling of a sort that should be subdued.—Charleston Journal.

THE NEW YORK AGE REJOICES PREMATURELY

The New York Age devoted several columns of valuable space in its last week's issue rejoicing over the defeat of Woodrow Wilson. It was believed by our contemporary that because Hughes had carried New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois he was elected. But brother mine, you forgot the omnivorous West. We are sorry Woodrow has won—charitably overlooking of course, the theft of the "Solid South"—but you New Yorkers need to wake up, sit up and take notice that the people of the west vote, too, and do not take their political orders from the effete east. We are sorry The Age, The New York Age, if you please, has to take back what it said last week.

WHAT PEOPLE THINK OF THE MONITOR

"The Monitor is one of the newest papers I read. Your editorial page is fine in its range, common sense, quiet humor and excellent language."—Judge Leslie.

"I didn't think there was a city in this part of the country that could put out such a dandy paper as The Monitor. I am anxious to become a subscriber."—J. Silas Harris.

"I seldom pay compliments unless they are deserved, and I will pay the compliment to The Monitor that it is one of the greatest Colored weeklies in America."—Nelson Crews, Editor of the Kansas City Sun.

"The Monitor is a gem in the field of weekly journalism. It is really worth while for both Colored people and white."—Dr. L. A. Merriam.

"And I trust that you and I both live to see the day when, with outstretched arms, we may point to the everlasting hills of The Monitor's success, and cry with a voice loud enough to make the whole world hear that The Monitor helped to bring peace on earth and good will to men."—R. H. Johnson, Lincoln, Nebr.

SONG OF SOCIETY

Society.

1. Beware, my son, of that juggernaut that calleth itself Society, for it is as dangerous as an empty smoke wagon.
2. Its coat of arms is a greenback rampant and its crest an S with two bars.
3. When thou startest in the game thy exchequer looketh as though it needed anti-fat, but ere long it looketh like a portrait on a dollar bottle, called "Before Taking."
4. Society's chief labor is trying to break through the fences higher up and when it reacheth the high rail it maketh the tight rope walker a monkey.
5. In social circles thou must wear a full dress radiator and encase thy throat in a high starched choker, whereas a woman needeth to cover only her ears.
6. Thou must grin and slip the happy mitt to everyone, even though thou wouldst rather be hauling around a gatling gun.
7. After thou gabblest to exhaustion and thy stomach crieth aloud for porterhouse, thou must content thyself with lady fingers and fluff-fluff-fluffy.
8. A little society now and then, O son, is like a morning of mornings, but too much giveth thee gastritis acuticus—or worse.

OBVIOUS OBSERVATION

"There, there, little saloon, don't cry; you'll be a drug store bye and bye." And we venture to add that the statistics of acute stomach disorders will multiply fifty thousand per cent.

The front pages are now cleared and Madame Europe will again toddle into the spotlight.

Christian Science is a mighty fine doctrine, but if it will only convince our bread baskets that our four-bit meal has the same value as our fifteen-cent meal of yesterday, we'll all join church tomorrow.

As Diogenes remarked, while climbing out of his tub Saturday night: "Never jump on a newspaper unless you have a fire extinguisher and a box of soothing salve."

Our blood pressure is decreasing and our pulse rate falling to normal, but the doctor said we must absolutely not worry with politics until the next campaign.

Please drop the one-fifty into the subscription plate, friend. The high cost of living has hit the newspaper just as hard as it hit you.

If some public spirited citizen wishes to have the arson law strictly enforced, we wish he would prefer charges against furnaces and stoves for burning up so much good money.

Thanking you kindly for your undivided attention, we will now proceed to blow out the gas.

"Stop this endless lying!" thundered the justice.

"But, loogy yuh, jedge," chided Brother Bogus, "Yo' knows good and well, sah, dat I can't affo'd to hire no lawyer to do it for me."

What doth it profit a man to duck four Ford cars only to be knocked down and mugged up by a boy on a bicycle?

Letters From Our Readers

PRIVATE LETTER WHICH WE'LL LET YOU READ.

A very dear clerical friend, out in the state, has sent us the following private letter, which we publish because it shows how others besides the editor of The Monitor looks at the political issue of prohibition which has just been voted upon by the electorate of the state. We thank him for his criticism of our explosion in our last issue and admit that he is right. We, of course, withhold the writer's name. Here is his letter.

November 14, 1916.

My Dear John Albert:

I congratulate you on having maintained a dignified opposition to the amendment throughout the stirring campaign. It seems to me the only logical and sensible, rational and moral position for a man of real intelligence. The more I contemplate this nation-wide, world-wide state of moral excitement which is sweeping over the entire Christian world, catching up in its train many men of brains and broad intelligence and hundreds of thousands who can think no farther than their desire that the world shall rise to a higher morality—the more I contemplate it, the more I am convinced that the certain, sure and inevitable break-down of the theory of law-made morality will usher in an era of terrible and fearful confusion in the matters of law and morals and religion.

I do not care to tire you with arguments, but I am most sincerely opposed to this whole movement, and not because of anything the Bible says or does not say, but simply because of the ultimate effect it must have in the inner moral life of the people.

I was a little sorry that you exploded with such a NOISE in the last issue of The Monitor. I could not blame you for feeling as you did, but the effect of that closing paragraph is not wholly good. We are entering upon an era when men will accuse each other unjustly of many wrongs, and that party of modern Pharisees which is rising into power in our land will tempt Godly men often to great intemperance in thought and feelings and also in words. As I feel, the man who can control his feelings and his temper under these "slings and arrows," "whips and scorns"—that man with his moral power and Godly patience will win his fight against evil more surely than the man who gives his feelings and temper too free rein.

However, I have laughed and laughed over the roast you gave the marvelously righteous lawyer of the Anti-Saloon tribe. I sincerely hope you will not think I am quietly roasting you. I write only as a friend.

Very sincerely yours,

A CREED

Faith in him who calls me friend,
Faith in what is sweet and clean;
Faith that just around the bend
All is peaceful and serene.
Faith that after care and strife
Come the happy days of rest;
Faith that everything in life
Really happens for the best.

This my faith and this my shield,
'Gainst the arrows of distrust;
Much of justice is concealed
In what seems to be unjust.
Now what seems a dismal way
That alone I'm forced to tread
I may come to see some day
Is a glorious path instead.

Undisturbed by petty wrongs,
Undismayed by what is mean,
Though the false attracts the throngs,
Though the multitude unclean,
Though at times I stand alone,
Though I'm oft misunderstood,
Faith I still would keep and own
In the decent and the good.

THE AFTERMATH

the only labor we have, it is the best we possibly could have—if we lose it, we go bankrupt!"

Here, again, from the Memphis Commercial Appeal: "The Negro has been a tremendous factor in the development of agriculture and all the commerce of the south. But in the meantime if we are to keep him here and we are to have the best use of his business capacity there is a certain duty that the white man himself must discharge in his relation to the Negro. The business of lynching Negroes is bad, and we believe it is declining, but the worst thing is that often the wrong Negro is lynched. The Negro should be protected in all his legal rights. Further, in some communities some white people make money at the expense of the Negro's lack of intelligence. Unfair dealings with the Negro is not a custom in the south. It is not the rule, but here and there the taking of enormous profits from the labor of the Negro is known to exist. It should be arranged that the Negro in the city does not have to raise his children in the alleys and in the streets. Liquor in cities has been a great curse to Negroes. Millions of dollars have been made by no-account white people selling no-account liquor to Negroes and thus making a whole lot of Negroes no account. Happily this business is being extinguished."

Did you see such editorials in the white papers of the south four years ago? In the range of all the years from the close of the civil war till now do you recall a single line that reads like these we have quoted? No, you never have. A new era has come. The Tillmans and Vardamans and Heflins are things of the past. The south is going to try and keep her Negroes and the price she must pay is better treatment. The figment of "a white man's south" has been thrown to the winds; the cry of "the black blot" has been forgotten. The south is fighting for her existence and she has already called and will call again to the federal government to come to her aid.

That is why beyond the rolling clouds we catch the glimmer of a golden sun. That is why the watchman says, "The morning cometh."

RAILWAYS AND HOTELS

(By W. J. Shields)

Art Winton, buffet man on the Santa Fe, stopped over in Omaha for a day this week.

The Commercial Club was short of waiters last week, but after the mercury headed for zero a regiment stormed the portals every noon.

It is reported that Maurer's will close up January first.

Your sweetheart, wife or sister, wants a box of O'Brien's Candy. Ask her and see.

John Folks left for Chicago last Saturday night.

Monitor is carrying the ads of the three finest haberdashers in Omaha. Visit them, boys.

If Ben Green's dog eats all the meat that Ben lays aside for him, said dog should make a ton of coal weigh like a toy balloon.

John Ruskin Cigar, 5 cents. Biggest and Best.

Henry Moore, Henry Buford, Ben Green and Roy Robertson have been engaged to act as special waiters for the Owl Club banquet which is scheduled soon at Jackson's cafe. It will probably be a nifty affair since the special waiters are to be paid five beans per and car fare.

Reports come that the liquor dealers are already preparing to enter new business and give employment to hundreds of men and women. So it seems, after all, that the hotel boys will be the hardest hit.

Gossip at the court house includes the way Colored voters stood by their friends. Even the defeated candidates are strong in their praise of the boys.

Remember, Freling and Best.

John Ruskin Cigar, 5 cents. Biggest and Best.

W. D. Sandifor is boosting strong for The Monitor out Los Angeles way and we appreciate it.

Our correspondent in Chicago says that work is plentiful there at present.

Dan Nall, the veteran Pullman porter of Chicago, passed through Portland last week en route to Seattle. Dan is looking well, is very popular among the boys and as full of sport as ever.

Frank Golden, the noted Twenty-fourth street caterer, has started organizing a Pig-Foot club.

P. H. Henry, a Howard University student, came to Omaha about ten days ago imbued with a desire to see the west. He is a worthy young man and has accepted a position as buffet porter between Chicago and Portland.

Don't fail to go to the Gayety this week and hear those Colored stars put across, "He's in the Jail House Now."

The boys are anxious to know why A. B. W. and J. W. S. are so quiet in Portland.

The Adam's Saxophone Orchestra lost their engagement at the Henshaw because of the union.

George Watson has just received a letter from W. H. Taylor, one of his waiters who left for California. Taylor says that he is spending twenty-four hours of every day trying to figure out how he can get back to dear old Omaha.

Johnnie Thomas and R. B. Scott are pleased with the L. A. Limited. They say the track is fast, but they are real trotters.

Atkisson, the home of the famous Nettleton Shoe, has favored us with a fine ad. Look it up, boys, and give him a play.

Tuesday night Adams' Saxophone Orchestra, the first Colored orchestra to be employed by the Fontenelle management, was notified that its date would have to be cancelled because the union had threatened to boycott the hotel if it played. About an hour later the manager notified the orchestra to come and after scouring the town with a taxi, the men were brought together. As they played, groups of union musicians gathered around and listened to the music, but no attempt was made to interfere with them.

Slim Watkins, the well known buffet porter of the O. S. L., was in Portland last week telling the boys how to get by and keep out of the snow.

Bud Slaughter, veteran dining car waiter and buffet porter of Chicago and Omaha, is in Portland on a vacation. His full beard gives him a rather fatherly appearance, and all the boys say, "Hello, dad."

One of the star crews of the Pacific Limited is that of Steward Cleary. He is a gentlemanly conductor who appreciates his crew, and his boys, Amos Madison, M. Ford, J. W. Dukes, and Albert Massey, are real waiters.

Smoke John Ruskin 5c Cigar. Biggest and Best.—Adv.

We are pleased to note that A. A.

on the phone when the crew hits Portland, but it seems he never gets his party.

AFRICAN FEATURES IN ANCIENT ART

Vanity Fair, for September, publishes a very interesting article upon "The Cave Paintings of Ajanta," by Ananda Coomaraswamy, evidently a Hindu. These paintings have only recently been discovered on the walls of some Buddhist temples and monasteries, near the little town and fort of Ajanta, while lies on the northern edge of the Central India tableland, forty miles from the nearest railway.

Several illustrations accompany the article and the surprising thing about them is the peculiar blending of the Asiatic and African features. Science has long since established the fact of the presence of the African in Asia, but heretofore the evidence was confined to present peoples and hints in ancient literatures. Now, however, the evidence crops out in frescoes executed between the Fourth and Seventh Centuries of the present era. "The frescoes," says the author, "form not only the most important monument of ancient painting in Asia, but it is one of the exceedingly few classic representations of the work of the artists of any dark race. A smaller set of paintings in a similar style is preserved in a rock-pocket at Sigin in Ceylon."

She Overreached Herself

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

When Thomas Deane was an old man his wife died, and he became dependent upon his daughter, Hester, for care and companionship. Unluckily at this very time Hester fell in love with a man of whom her father did not approve.

When Hester Deane married George Martindale without her father's consent Mr. Deane took into his home Edna Tiernan, a niece of his wife's about his daughter's age, and turned over to her his household affairs. Mr. Deane soon became so dependent upon Edna that despite the fact of his being three times her age he wanted her to marry him, for he was a widower and Hester was his only child.

Now, Edna was in love with a man who was paying her a great deal of attention, but had not proposed to her. If he would marry her she might tell her aged lover that she was already spoken for, but if she told him that she was free, but would not marry him, she might lose her home, and she had nothing to live upon. The man she wanted, Edgar Thorne, was well to do and could give her a good home. But from all appearance he had no intention of making her his wife.

Edna endeavored to steer a middle course between the two men, but one evening Mr. Deane, entering a room suddenly where she and Thorne were together found them locked in each other's arms. Thorne in order to protect the girl told Deane that she was his wife.

Deane, after Thorne had left the house, questioned Edna about the situation. She confirmed Thorne's statement, claiming that Thorne was not able to support her, and they were waiting till he was in a better financial condition to acknowledge the marriage and live together.

Deane was perplexed to know what to do. He was inclined to forgive his daughter for marrying without his consent, bring her back with her husband and still give her the care of his household. He said nothing to Edna about this, but when she saw a letter he had written to Hester on his desk she surmised what it meant. Seeing him commit the letter to a maid to be mailed Edna took it from the maid's hand, saying that she would attend to its posting. The letter never reached its destination, but in due time a reply was received by Mr. Deane from his daughter stating that she would not forgive her father for his treatment of her and she and her husband would continue to live where they were. This letter was forged by Edna.

Deane fell sick after this, and Edna took care of him, he being entirely dependent upon her ministrations. During his illness he was obliged to rely upon her for assistance in the execution of certain papers, whereby it became evident that he possessed a considerable property.

At once it became Edna's object to induce him to make her his heir. He was gradually sinking, and she dominated him in his weakness. A few days before his death she induced him to permit her to send for a lawyer to make a will. Mr. Deane gave orders when the man arrived that he be shown to the sickroom and no one else be admitted. The will was executed and Edna informed that all the property had been willed to her. But the attorney was instructed to retain possession of the document. Being assured by both men of the truth of this statement, Edna was satisfied and content to wait for the end, which was a matter of only a few days.

After the death of Mr. Deane Edna called on the lawyer who had drawn the will and asked to see it. It was shown her, and she read that all the testator's property was willed to Edna Tiernan Thorne.

Edna was not so dull as to suppose she could inherit under this will unless married to Thorne, and even then, the property having been left to her as Edna Thorne when she was Edna Tiernan, she doubted if the will would hold good. Without a word to the lawyer she went away to find Thorne. On meeting him she told him of the situation. On hearing it his face fell. He had married another woman, keeping his marriage a secret from Edna, fearing that she would make trouble for him. Being a grasping man, he regretted his marriage, for Edna now gave him to understand that the Deane property was considerable.

Edna was crushed at the failure of her efforts. She confessed to the attorney for the estate that she was Edna Tiernan, but not Edna Tiernan Thorne. He told her at once that the will was void and that if no valid will was found Hester Deane Martindale, being heir at law, would come into possession of the estate.

No other will was found, but Hester had no difficulty in proving her claim to her father's fortune as his only child. It turned out a surprise to every one, it having been supposed that Mr. Deane was in very moderate circumstances.

The only offset to Edna's crime was her confession to Hester that she had destroyed her father's letter forgiving and recalling her and had written him a forged reply.

Hester Martindale treated magnanimously the woman who had so abused her. Remembering that Edna had nursed her father in his last illness and that he had intended to leave his property to her, Hester granted her an income for the balance of her life, but Hester would never permit the forger to come near her.

Bowser Goes Shopping

He Gives Mrs. Bowser a Great Surprise

By M. QUAD

MR. BOWSER had made $500 profit in the sale of some land, and he felt good. He came home with a light step and a smile on his face and chucked Mrs. Bowser under the chin and called her his dear. He was unusually talkative, and it was ten minutes after they had got seated for the evening before Mrs. Bowser could find a chance to say:

"Well, I am certainly glad over the extra money. I hope you can spare me $10 to get some things I need."

"I will make it $50," he said as he drew out his wallet and began to count the heap of bills over. "Hold on, though! I guess I will make it $40, so that you will buy no useless articles. When a woman has $50 in her pocket she is apt to become reckless and desperate."

Mrs. Bowser reached for the four ten-dollar bills he had counted out, but Mr. Bowser drew them away and said, "Mrs. Bowser, I don't want to put thoughts of extravagance into your head. You will need other things later on in the fall. I should think you could get along with $15 or $20 just now."

"Well, hand it over," she replied as cheerfully as she could.

Mr. Bowser put all the bills back in his wallet and returned the wallet to his pocket and said: "We will see about the sum in a day or two. A sudden idea has come to me, and I want time to think it over."

Of course Mrs. Bowser was disappointed, but she bore up under it as well as she could. Not again during the evening was the subject of money referred to, but Mr. Bowser seemed much preoccupied with that new thought of his. Nothing was said about shopping next morning, and when Mr. Bowser got outdoors he chuckled and said:

"Mrs. Bowser doesn't suspect a thing, and it will be a complete surprise to her. There is once in awhile a woman who can take $10 and spend it to advantage, but she is no one of them."

Mr. Bowser headed for a department store, and he had a lot on his mind. He knew that a woman's first and last thought was of a hat. He asked the floorwalker to be shown the millinery display, and the woman who came forward to wait on him sized him up in about ten seconds.

"Here is an old crank who wants to buy a hat for his wife instead of letting her choose for herself," was her mental comment. Therefore, she had no kind feelings for him and determined to make him pay for the insult to the sex. So she directed his attention to old stock hats exclusively. After about fifteen minutes Mr. Bowser selected one. It was selected without reference to Mrs. Bowser's complexion. It was trimmed with lilacs. Neither did he mind the shape. If Mrs. Bowser wanted a different shape, all she had to do was to kick in one side a little.

The price of the hat had been $10. It was now advanced to $12, and Mr. Bowser was assured that it would go up to $15 before Christmas. He counted out the money and felicitated himself that he had a bargain.

Mrs. Bowser had talked more or less about shirt waists. He fell into the hands of another woman, and she hastened to work off some old stock on him. She did not ask whether Mrs. Bowser was short or tall, fat or lean. She flung waist after waist at him, and every one had been stock for at least a year. Mr. Bowser made his selections by what he bragged was his wonderful intuition, and he was assured by the woman that he had made some wonderful bargains. He had four waists bundled up and paid for them a greater sum than they had sold at before being pawed over for a year.

There must be skirts, and when Mr. Bowser was asked what color Mrs. Bowser preferred he said: "Oh, the color doesn't amount to a snap! My wife looks good in any color. You give me two of the checks and two of the stripes. I am buying these things to give my wife a surprise."

"That is nice of you," replied the saleswoman, "and she will certainly be surprised."

Mr. Bowser then proceeded to the hosiery department and fell into the hands of a woman who sold him half a dozen pairs of old stock, size 12, at 75 cents a pair, that would be dear at 49 cents a pair. Each pair was of different shades in color. He would not wait for them to be delivered, but hired a boy to carry them along and started for home. When he entered the house it was with the salutation:

"Say, dear, I have been shopping for you, and I have got a surprise on hand. Just inspect these things, will you? The total cost of them was over $40, but I think I have saved at least $15 over what you could have done."

Mrs. Bowser placed the bundles on the floor and opened and inspected them. She had been at work only seven or eight minutes when Mr. Bowser was seen dashing for the drug store. As he entered it he called out:

"Boy, doctor, grab a bottle of camphor and another of ammonia and come along with me. Mrs. Bowser has fainted away and fallen to the floor, and her eyes are rolling, and she is frothing at the mouth, and if something isn't done for her she will be a dead woman in fifteen minutes more."

Mrs. S. W. Grundy, 2813 Douglas street, entertained at whist Thursday evening, November 9, complimentary to Miss Ethel Watkins of Illinois. Covers were laid for twelve. GEORGE A. MAGNEY
Re-Elected County Attorney

Made a Costly Mistake.

A big commercial house in the middle west raised the salary of one of its officers to $40,000 a year.

The officer was greatly pleased. "Now my ambition is satisfied," he said.

Within two years the concern had found a way to dispense with this officer's services. It was done cleverly and smoothly. The man never suspected the real reason why he was released.

The head of the concern had overheard his remark. "We want no men in this business whose ambition is satisfied," he said. "When a man is satisfied, when he ceases to plan and fight for the future, we begin to lose money on him."—Woman's Home Companion.

Lame Ducks.

"What is a 'lame duck,' anyhow?" asked the man from back home.

"A 'lame duck,'" responded Congressman Hammfatt, "is a statesman who has been urged by his constituents to take his feet out of the trough."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Much Better Scheme.

"Darling, I love you so much I would gladly die for you."

"That's very nice of you, George, but it wouldn't do me any good. I'd so much rather you'd make a good living for me than a glad dying."—Baltimore American.

Mean Cat!

"Algernon called on me yesterday afternoon."

"Yes; he told me he had some time to kill."—Kansas City Journal.

good, he made a record as high as any man that ever held that great office, if not a little higher, and having done so, I should have continued him in it even if every white man in the United States had asked for his removal. It is worth, not birth that should count, wholly regardless of the nationality, creed or color of the man. I am proud of Mr. Anderson."

These words were greeted with tremendous applause in which Mrs. Hughes joined heartily.

N. W. C. A. NOTES.

The regular meeting was held at the home Wednesday afternoon with a large and enthusiastic attendance. The provisions donation suggested by Mrs. R. W. Freeman brought a good number of gifts.

The pastors of all the churches have given permission for the placing of a barrel in the vestibules of the churches on the Sunday before Thanksgiving Day.

Men, women and children attending the services are asked to bring a potato, an apple or an onion and put it in the barrel for the home.

The Saddest Blow of All

YOUNG housewives obliged to practice strict economy will sympathize with the sad experience of a Washington woman.

When her husband returned home one evening he found her dissolved in tears, and careful questioning elicited the reason for her grief.

"Dan," said she, "every day this week I have stopped to look at a perfect love of a hat in Mme. Louise's window. Such a hat, Dan; such a beautiful hat! But the price—well, I wanted it in the worst way, but just couldn't afford to buy it!"

"Well, dear," began the husband recklessly, "we might manage to"—

"Thank you, Dan," interrupted the wife, "but there isn't any 'might' about it. I paid the cook this noon, and what do you think? She marched right down herself and bought that hat!"

JEAN BEDINI'S PARISIAN
NOVELTY "PUSS-PUSS"

Davis and Stafford, the two colored comedians at the Gayety theatre this week with Jean Bedini's Parisian Novelty "Puss-Puss," eight years ago were both in the barber business in Newark, N. J.

However, the clipping of sandy, brown, red and black hair and the head massages worked on the nerves of the two fellows.

They paid little attention to their barber business and devoted most of their time in constructing an act. They finally quit the barber business and went into cheap vaudeville, soon they had such a good act, that an agent of the Keith circuit saw them act in one of the small vaudeville houses and gave them their first real opportunity. For several years they were headliners in all the large vaudeville houses.

Jean Bedini saw their act two years ago and engaged them at once, for his show, and the results have been that, Bedini has signed them for five years with a large increase in salary every season.

Bedini knows good talent when he sees it, as it will be proven by the cast he has engaged for this year's "Puss-Puss" Co., including besides Toots Davis and Edw. Stafford, Pam Lawrence, soubrette; Minni Harrison, ingenue; Marguerite Ryan, comedienne; Harry Jackson, Hebrew comedian; Charlie Mac, English eccentric comedian; George Brooks, juvenile; Al Ricardo, ventriloquist and a "Kitten Chorus" of twenty beautiful girls.

Davis and Stafford will sing their famous song "In the Jail House Now" that scored such a hit here last season and several other new ones.

There will be a matinee daily, commencing Saturday, Nov. 18th, and ending Friday night, Nov. 24th.

An Open Letter.

Omaha, Neb.

To Whom it May Concern:

I suffered intensely with chronic rheumatism for three years, which caused a general breakdown. I went to the various Springs and was treated by the leading physicians, but nothing did me any good. I was advised to try Dr. Pryor's treatments and can say that I owe my life to his wonderful methods. I feel that it is my duty unsolicited, to highly recommend Dr. Pryor's treatments to those who suffer as I did.

Respectively,
